Griffith College is an equal opportunities employer

All candidates applying for teaching posts must undergo a mock lecture before being interviewed; they may be asked demonstrate ability via portfolio.

Required Qualifications

Candidates are expected to have:

Bachelor degree in a design-related discipline, a postgraduate qualification (level 9 or above), or equivalent in a cognate discipline. Membership of a Professional body and any record of research, scholarship and publications are an advantage.

Successful applicants should have the following attributes:

- Proven teaching excellence and ability to support curriculum development in Interior Design;
- Some experience or knowledge for designing for curriculum for blended or online delivery an advantage
- Demonstrated leadership and problem solving skills; applying student-centred design and learning processes
- Work with eLearning champions to ensure 'best practice' is disseminated across the Interior Design Course
- Experience of working in a positive, flexible manner.
- A willingness to arrange and participate in student trips and site visits.
- experience of openly exchanging information and supporting colleagues
- An understanding and commitment to Equal Opportunities and Diversity.

Guidelines for Mock Lecture

As part of the interview process, candidates are required to give a 5 – 10 minute mock lecture, regarding the interview panel as students.

The lecture should cover an item (or items) of the candidate's choice from an existing (or proposed) course offered by the Faculty or Department.

The candidate is free to use whatever medium and teaching aids are appropriate, including laptop and projector, but is encouraged to use new technology.

The lecture should not be the first lecture in a course, nor should it be an overview of a course. The lecture will focus on explaining a particular aspect of the course to students who are unfamiliar with the topic.

The lecturer should begin by outlining any previous information that the students are expected to know (e.g. "I'm assuming you know how to which we covered last week"). Questions will be asked of the lecturer, either during or after the lecture.
