

Your Next Career Move is Here - Join IrishCentral in Dublin

Want to come and work for the largest Irish website in North America, dedicated to bringing Ireland to communities around the world? Want over 2.2 million people to see your work every month, from Dublin to New York and beyond?

IrishCentral is searching for a Dublin-based Editorial Intern, to help the management of the ever-growing website with SEO, content management, content creation, and various other integral roles.

Great content, social sharing, and digital inspiration is what we are about and we're looking for.

Yes, It's You If...

You are passionate about all things digital, including content social media and learning about how to manage a busy website

You have experience using a content management system, such as Wordpress

You are familiar with IrishCentral

You are a super quick learner with a can-do mentality

You have dreams and ambitions to pursue a career in digital media

You are bursting with high levels of energy and love getting involved in brainstorming, new projects, and more

*NB: Previous experience is not required, but a whole heap of enthusiasm is!

What It Is:

An internship: you will learn, be part of a solid crew of senior journalists and content creators who are invested in getting you up to speed so you can nail your career goals and bring more every day

Paid: there will be remuneration for this role, details on application

To apply, send your CV and a cover note telling us how you meet all the criteria above (and more) to Editors@IrishCentral.com and include the subject line "Dublin Intern".
